

Shadow Dance

Writer

Deborah Boydston

Publisher

ScribeSlice 2015

Their story cast a shadow
On fine white linen drapes
Played out with brilliant beauty
Upon a fabric landscape

She was seated at a table
He reached out for her hand
She gracefully accepted
Then stood at his command

He took her gently in his arms
In a tender sweet embrace and they began to dance that night around the room with grace

They paused for just a moment
As he lifted up her chin
He kissed her softly on the lips
And they began to dance again

This night was the beginning
And soon became much more
Their dance would last a lifetime
Their love applauded encore

Their story cast a shadow
On fine white linen drapes
Played out with great devotion
Upon a fabric landscape
© Deborah Boydston 2015

ScribeSlice