

SACRED AND PROFANE DIVINITY

Writer

Bhaskar Thakuria

Publisher

ScribeSlice 2015

The moral convictions of Yesteryears,
Sacred and priceless
Though they may be,
Are but the bearers of
Profanity and spurious airs;
They appear harmless
All at once, but maybe
They dissemble
In their wont to persecute
The prosaic habits
Of our everyday selves.
But we assemble
Forever with our fortitude;
In our habit
And our belief in love and ourselves.
© Bhaskar Thakuria 2015

ScribeSlice